Curry Looking for Permanent Solutions in Budget Slashing

by James Giese

"A sobering and, at times, gut-wrenching experience" is how Prince Georges County Executive Wayne K. Curry described the process of developing deep, permanent cuts in the county budget in order for him to present to the County Council "a plan that preserves the County's financial health." Curry's Proposed Current Expense Budget for Fiscal Year (FY) 1996 contains $80 million in spending cuts which will affect every program and agency of the county government in varying degrees. However, the "largest slice of the FY 1996 budget pie" will go to those programs that county citizens have said are the most important, Curry stated in his budget message to the County Council.

The budget does not rely on any new revenues that might or might not be coming out of actions of the state legislature in Annapolis, as final actions had not been taken at the time the budget was prepared. Curry had requested additional taxing authority as well as state assistance. Indications are that the legislature will at least approve proposals by governor Parris Glendening to provide enough funds to prevent the closing of six county libraries as the budget now recommends.

The county, like most Maryland jurisdictions, has experienced little revenue growth since the recession at the beginning of this decade. Revenue for FY 1996 will increase little from the previous year, with the total increase being less than $19 million. The biggest increase will be in State, Federal and other outside aid for education and the libraries amounting to $14.8 million.

Property assessments will increase 1.8 percent overall, but the one-third of the county property, including that in Greenbelt, which was reassessed this past year will drop in value by more than 2 percent as a group. The other major tax source, the income tax, will increase by a modest $4.5 million.

Tax Differential

Greenbelt, and other municipal property tax payers will not receive scheduled cuts in the county tax rate for the new year if Curry has his way. Because county expenditures were increased in FY 1995 for services to the unincorporated areas that the city and other municipal governments, and not the county, provide in their jurisdictions, county tax levies in municipalities were to be reduced by an aggregate 2.8 million according to a tax differential formula established many years ago. Curry, however, has asked the county council to freeze the county tax levies within the municipalities at their present level for the next year. The county has not released its calculations as to what the municipal tax rates would be if not frozen by the county council.

Education

Although funds for education are $23.8 million above the FY 1995 budget, growth in the student population will force the Board of Education to make cuts in all areas of school operations. Comprehensive school classes are expected to increase by 1.5 students. Curry believes that the board will have to cut the school administrative staff and reduce layers of management throughout the system. Funds for the Black Male Achievement and the first year of the Comprehensive School Initiative were deleted. Other programs throughout the range of educational offerings will have to be reduced, curtailed or deferred.

Curry's budget message lists a number of other impacts. The county libraries will be reduced to a five-day week scheduled and six libraries will be closed unless the added state funds are forthcoming. Although Curry says that he will make every effort to protect the number of police

Late Bulletin

The Prince Georges County Police are asking the community for their help in identifying the following vehicle. Based on interviews of witnesses, neighborhood canvasses, and follow-up investigation, the Homicide Unit of the Police Department would like to provide the following update in reference to the ongoing Murder Investigation of Julie Ferguson.

Witnesses have been located who observed a vehicle described as an older model, possible 1988 or 1989 Volkswagon JETTA, maroon or burgundy in color, pull up in front of the Greenway Shopping Center liquor store. It is unknown at this time who was occupying the vehicle. It has been determined that Julie Ferguson disappeared within minutes of this vehicle being observed.

Through further investigation additional witnesses have been located and interviewed who observed a maroon or burgundy vehicle on the side of the road on Daisy Lane where Julie Ferguson was found. The citing of the vehicle by these witnesses was in the time frame of when it is believed Julie was killed.

In conclusion, the reward for the information that leads to the arrest and indictment of the killer or killers of Julie Ferguson is now $22,000. Anyone with information is asked to call the Homicide Unit at 301-772-4925 or Crime Solvers at 1-800-673-2777.

Man Tries to Abduct Girl

by Elaine Skolnik

An attempted abduction of a 12-year-old girl behind the Greenbelt Library occurred on Tuesday, March 28 at 2:55 p.m., according to Officer George Mathews, spokesperson for the Greenbelt Police Department. The girl, a Greenbelt resident and St. Hugh's student, escaped unharmed. No one has yet been apprehended. There have been no reports of similar suspicious activities. The police are investigating the incident.

Mathews described the suspect as a white male in his thirties, about 5 feet 10 inches in height and weighing about 170 lbs. Wearing blue jeans and a white T-shirt, the man had dirty, shoulder-length red hair.

The young girl was accosted by the man just after she had finished making a call to her mother from the pay telephone located on the outside wall of the library building at the parking lot. Mathews explained that the stranger "approached her from behind and asked her to go over to his vehicle to look at a map." Apparently he wanted directions, Mathews added.

The girl refused, informing the man that she was not allowed to talk to strangers. The man, Mathews said, then grabbed her arm and started to pull her, but the girl broke away and fled the area to the shopping center.

St. Hugh's principal, Philip V. Robey, notified parents of the incident and advised parents "to be on special guard and... not allow your child to travel around Greenbelt by him/her self... Times have changed, and it is important that our behavior change for the protection of our children." Robey believes that children should travel in groups, not alone and "not stray from their destination."

Robey also noted that children who are picked up by car will be placed in St. Hugh's school's "after care" if their parents are late.

NARFE Meeting

The National Association of Retired Federal Employees (NARFE) will hold their monthly meeting Wednesday, April 12, at noon at the Greenbelt Library.

NARFE member Dennis Webb will be speaking on Prehistoric sites in the Greenbelt area. All members and prospective members are invited to attend.

Qussay Returns from Iraq

According to a release by the Greenbelt Police Department, Qussay Luay Nuaimy, age 8, who was abducted by his father in mid-July 1992, returned to the United States with his father on a flight from Amsterdam, the Netherlands, arriving at JFK Airport, New York City, Tuesday April 4.

Qussay's parents are divorced, and Qussay was visiting with his father, Luay Mohamed Nuaimy, from mid-June to mid-July 1992. The mother has sole custody of Qussay, but the father had four weeks of visitation rights during the summer months. The father and son dropped by Qussay's residence on Parkway on July 12 to pick up Qussay's swim trunks. Nuaimy was supposed to return Qussay to his mother on the 19th.

Investigation revealed that sometime after Nuaimy and Qussay had been at Qussay's, they went to New York and then flew to Amman, Jordan on July 15. On July 19, a friend of Mrs. Nuaimy received a phone call from Nuaimy advising that he and his son were in Baghdad, Iraq.

On July 21, 1992, a criminal summons charging Nuaimy with parental abduction was issued. The FBI also issued a warrant for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution. During the past several years, Det./Sgt. Marr D. ("Doug") Sappington and Mrs. Nuaimy have worked closely with the State Department and other government agencies for the safe return of Qussay. Negotiations recently resulted in the father's agreeing to return Qussay to the United States.

Mrs. Nuaimy, Det./Sgt. Sappington and a camera crew from the syndicated TV show Current Affairs were at JFK airport for the arrival of Qussay and Nuaimy. Qussay, his mother and Sappington returned to Greenbelt late Tuesday evening.

Nuaimy voluntarily decided to leave the country relinquishing the child to his mother who has lawful custody.

Postmaster Says Greenbelt Needs Larger Post Office

by Millie O'Dea

Although there are no immediate plans in Greenbelt for a larger post office, Postmaster John H.S. Hyater is on top of the situation.

At present, the post office facility houses a total of 51 staff people, including 37 letter carriers. Twenty-three postal trucks assigned here are used for the 23 delivery routes. During the past decade postal service has seen significant growth - from approximately 40,000 people served in 1987 to 65,000 in 1994. "We've outgrown our present quarters," the postmaster says.

The opening of the new federal courthouse, Hyater noted, has added 18 extra deliveries. New developments in Greenbelt East, NASA, the Capital Office Park complex and Beltway Plaza are all serviced by the Greenbelt Post Office.

At the local facility, parking conditions are inadequate. The 23 postal trucks do not have designated places, increasing difficulties for the drivers, who must find spaces when they return from their routes. The trucks have also sometimes been vandalized. Hyater is concerned as well about the lack of parking spaces for postal customers. Thus the major need for Greenbelters, he said, is for an additional building to accommodate the carriers and to provide a secured, enclosed compound for the trucks.

Hyater, however, does not see the need to move the entire facility. Postal boxes, sales, mailing and receipt of packages would remain in the present space, in the plan he has in mind. But the moving of the carriers to an additional nearby facility, like Capital Office Park, would leave-in-house space to provide better service to customers and the moving of the trucks would free up parking space.

Hyater noted, "We're all jammed up here; we need room so we can really provide the type of service our customers deserve." He feels the facility should remain where it is, in the heart of Greenbelt, rather than moving it to a new site.

No plans are on the drawing board as yet and dealing with the overcrowding cannot be solved overnight. Requests have been made, however, to those with administrative and supervisory authority, including U.S. Representative Steny Hoyer. Hyater said he is "close to asking for a feasibility study" -- the first step in the request process.

Although he is aware that the Greenbelt Post Office needs to expand, he is also aware that post offices elsewhere in the country might also be in dire need. Hyater indicated his hope that city officials might be able to designate a site for an additional facility and to free-up the present facility from its overload.

Court Parent Program

Twenty years have passed since the Greenbelt Court Parent Program gave city children a place of refuge on their way to and from school. Now a similar program will begin.

Volunteers will undergo a Maryland State Police child care background check before they can participate. Officer George Mathews in charge of the program, will submit fingerprint cards to the State Police who conduct the background checks. In light of what is happening in the community today, many believe that participation is greatly needed.

Those who wish to volunteer and who are at home during the day, are asked to call Officer George Mathews at 507-6515.

A Matter of Opinion

A Touch on the Shoulder

by Paul Downs

Whether or not it is on paper, or is official, the nearly 200 acre forest in our town is a kind of wildlife preserve. Just as the "Great North Woods" BARC land is a sanctuary and refuge, so are our green belt woods.

Our forest preserve has seen more usage recently. Many are enjoying this place. But not all remember to take their garbage out with them. If it wasn't for all the really neat people who pick up that occasional piece of trash here and there we could really get behind. Unfortunately, in some places we have. Some areas have begun to look like acceptable locations to discard trash. Just to clean it up is a half Saturday, seven person job.

A stream bed with a few neon orange candy wrappers isn't the end of the world, but neither is dropping a hundred acre Department of Agriculture headquarters facility a few miles off. Not really all that bad in and of itself. Collateral damage of increased traffic wouldn't decrease the quality of life significantly. Well at least not quite. You see a breathtaking sun stroke on yonder hillside and it is interrupted by just a little discarded styrofoam, this in the scheme of things is only about as bad as a four lane or six lane highway buzzing Greenbelt Lake.

Our woods could use some cleaning up. I think the swamp lands get so littered because the source from upstream that used to send only clean water is sending down trash. Maybe, we could understand that the quality of the water flowing downstream is determined by what's upstream, just as the quality of our lives are determined by those upstream making the decisions.

Our Greenbelt is still a forest, still a magnificent wild life preserve; just as is the BARC land. Still the growth syndrome of the vultures roars. If we just let things go as they are, let the total of all the garbage that is there be added to all the garbage coming, this would be about as bad as dropping a Department of Agriculture and FDA road swellers in our back yard. Road sweller projects that blow up into inter-county connector-like things that can eventually ejaculate a new stadium or another mall.

Now I know none of us would want that, would we! What happens to a place that becomes picked at, here and there, here and there! Neglected here and there! That is why I compare this boom town being stuffed down our throats to garbage.

Correction

In the Fifty Years Ago article titled Election Day in the March 23 issue of this paper it was stated that Roosevelt beat Wendell Wilkie in 1944. Wrong! Shame on you New Dealers for not catching it. According to an anonymous historian who phoned in and subsequent verification, Thomas E. Dewey lost to Roosevelt in that year. Wilkie ran and lost in 1940.

The anonymous historian also confirmed that Millard Tydings and Lansdale G. Sasser won their elections for the Senate and House.

None of it is wanted! All of it decreases quality of life!

I think a lot of us are beginning to feel an immense urge to do something sound and good in the face of all the terrible proposals coming downstream. I know that we as a community can agree that the proposals suggested will have a significant decrease in the quality of our lives. So if you want to work out some frustration or just expand the beauty of our woods, volunteer. If this work isn't to your fancy, we need wheelbarrows and bags and other kinds of help.

Sometimes in the midst of all the political dealings needed to achieve conservation, it is a relief to do something physical and real that you can complete. You're there in the woods, trash bag in hand. You notice a few pieces of garbage under a holly tree. You stoop under to pick up the pieces and feel something like wings growing off your shoulders, then realize that the boughs of the hollies are giving you a touch on the shoulder for a job well done. You stand back and lean on satisfaction, not even knowing you've just wiped a fleck of dirt off the robe of the Mighty Mother Patuxent.

GHI Day Celebration

by Don Comis and Kris White

Spring is here and it's time to clean up, beautify and party.

Greenbelt Homes, Inc.'s (GHI) first GHI Day will give you the chance to do all three on Saturday, April 22, at Hamilton Place. Clean out your attic and bring it to the "All-GHI" yard sale which begins at 8:30 a.m. GHI members can sell their own goods and pocket the cash. Anyone can donate goods to a GHI table to defray the festival's expense. The festival itself begins at 10 a.m. and ends at 5 p.m.

Then, as you're dividing your bulbs and generally sprucing up your home landscape, take note of any leftover plants and bulbs. At GHI Day, you can note these on a plant-and-bulb exchange bulletin board so someone else can beautify their landscape. And, if you haven't had enough digging, you can join a volunteer landscaping party at the festival and beautify the area around the GHI offices.

If you can still think of working after that, hobble over to the GHI Woodland's Committee table and sign up for a common area cleanup at a later date. And don't forget to buy some grass seed at the festival.

Now you need to party. First, sit down and rest with a hot dog and drink and listen to some music. If other engagements don't interfere, new GHI member Jeff Felsher will demonstrate his jazz skills from 1 to 2 p.m. Other musicians are being sought.

Felsher, who moved to Green-

Greenbelt Girl Scouts Celebrate Special Day

by Chizuko Nakamura

About 100 people from 11 different Greenbelt Girl Scout troops caught a breath of spring in a one-hour hike through the city on March 14. As part of the national Girl Scout event "Be Your Best Day," Girl Scouts, family members and leaders celebrated this special day together. "Even pets went along with us," said Karen Yoho, Junior Girl Scout leader and service unit manager.

After the prize drawings at Roosevelt Center, the hikers merrily walked around the south side of Old Greenbelt. "Through the neighborhoods, we were singing Girl Scout songs," said Girl Scout Robin Brooks, whose sister and mother also joined the hike. Though her sister, Rachel, got a little tired after walking all the way back to the Center through Braden Field, she said, "It was kind of fun because I got to see some of my friends who are in Girl Scouts." Greenbelt Girl Scouts planned the hike to enhance the community's fitness awareness and help participants take good care of their bodies.

On the first annual Girl Scouts' "Be Your Best Day," Girl Scouts across the nation made a pledge to do something that would benefit their communities on that day. The on-going project has recently added six new aspects, including caring for environment, self-esteem, contemporary and community issues, to the existing health and fitness interest. "By preparing girls for the many opportunities and challenges they face in today's society, we can ensure a bright future for all," said Yoho.

officers on the beat and firefighters and paramedics in fire stations, public safety agencies will see dramatic changes in their organizational charts, management structures and administrative support and programs such as DARE will be severely curtailed. Operating funds for volunteer fire companies will be reduced by over 7%.

Health clinic services will be reduced, a clinic at Laurel closed, medical care for children will see deep service cuts and school health services will be reduced and shifted to the education system. Road and highway maintenance including leaf collection, roadside mowing and tree trimming will be reduced, janitorial services curtailed and equipment and building maintenance reduced to emergency needs only.

"Rainy Day Fund"

Curry states that he will continue to set aside the money required by the County Charter for a "rainy day" fund for unforeseen contingencies. Responding to those who believe that FY 1996 is a "rainy day," Curry states that the contingency reserve fund is not intended as a device for balancing the budget and the Charter permits it to be used only for unexpected emergency needs. He calls this fund "the cornerstone of a strong financial plan to secure the County's fiscal future by protecting its bond rating".

During the past several years, the county has minimized its budget cutting by restructuring its debt and deferring for several years the payment of bond principal and by spending down its surplus funds ($27.5 million in FY 1995). Curry states, however, that he will insist that the county maintain "a structurally balanced budget based upon permanent solutions, not one time gimmicks."

Prince Georges County

THE FY96 BUDGET AT A GLANCE

- * The Proposed FY96 General Fund Budget is $1,159,436,828 — essentially unchanged from the FY95 level.
- * The Budget provides as much money as possible to the County's most important programs and services while meeting the Charter-mandated Contingency Reserve requirement.
- * County General Fund staff will drop by 772 positions. Nearly 500 of the reductions will involve layoffs.
- * The budget includes $80 million in spending cuts, affecting nearly every program and agency in County government.
- * The budget proposes almost $19 million in revenue increases, making full use of the County's current authority to raise revenue without relying on new revenues from Annapolis.
- * The Board of Education's budget will be $706.9 million—$23.8 million above the FY95 level. Of this amount, $15 million will be allocated as the Board's contribution to the Contingency Reserve, leaving $691.9 million to be spent on school programs.
- * The Board's request will have to be severely reduced in a number of areas: Comprehensive School Initiative, additional staffing for enrollment increases, Black Male Achievement Program, administrative staff, instructional programs.
- * The cuts in County government will streamline, consolidate, and restructure many programs. Roughly $12 million will be saved from cutting administrative layers, reorganizing and civilianizing.
- * There are also numerous painful cuts that will touch the lives of many County citizens.

Six libraries will close, and libraries presently open six days a week will go to a five-day operation. Sunday hours will be eliminated at all branches.

Sworn strength in the Police Department will decline. Administrative and community relations functions will be restructured, consolidated, and civilianized. On-street strength will be sustained as much as possible.

Health clinic funding will be severely curtailed, affecting services at the Laurel, Greater Baden, Northwestern High School, and Prince Georges Volunteer clinics.

The Department of Social Services will eliminate one of its homeless programs.

There will be sharp reductions in road maintenance: leaf collection, mowing, and tree trimming; and complete elimination of contracted litter control and street sweeping.

The DWI and Work Release programs in Hyattsville will close.

- * The County's Solid Waste problem will be resolved. Operating costs will be cut, borrowing for capital improvements will be scaled back, and rebates to municipalities will be adjusted. The tipping fee has been set at $49 per ton, and a new system of environmental fees will be used to pay for recycling, debt service, landfill closure costs, and bulky trash collection. County collection contracts will be renegotiated and virtually all unincorporated areas outside municipalities will be brought under County contracts.

- * The $195.8 million Proposed Capital Budget is $68.7 million (26% less than budgeted in FY95.)

- * Very few new initiatives are included in the County portion of the Capital Budget. Emphasis will be on completing projects in progress, providing matching funds for jointly funded State-County projects, and maintaining the County's building stock and infrastructure.

Overflow Crowd Celebrates Celtic Evening on March 17

by Barbara Likowski

It was the luck not just of the Irish but of all the other Celtic people that was celebrated at the Greenbelt Arts Center (GAC) on St. Patrick's Day. Fittingly, there were a few more Irish tunes than in GAC's other Celtic programs because of the special day. The overflow crowd seemed to love it all and clapped and cheered and yes, yelled their pleasure. Greenbelter John Ward, as usual, led the program, explained many songs and fiddled from beginning to end.

Two of the three performing groups had taken part in the two other Celtic evenings at the GAC. Mac-talla, a group of singers were assisted by recorder, tin whistle and our own Beatrix Whitehall on the bodhran (Celtic drum) and John Ward on the fiddle. They presented mostly music of Gaelic Scotland in the ancient language.

The Homespun ceilidh Band was composed of the Potomac Valley Scottish Fiddle Club and Thir Foetr, a dance group and band organized to recreate and explore medieval and renaissance music. Some of their instruments were baroque, some more modern. When is the last time you've seen a viola da gamba? We sat close enough to the one in this band to observe how it was played. That player also had two other instruments. We were enchanted with her delicate sounding finger cymbals.

The third group, Skye Gathering was a new group composed of John and Trix and Karin Loya on cello and Lorraine Lacey on the Celtic harp.

We were happy to see and hear the Celtic harp. Although the delicate sound of this lovely instrument came through when Skye Gathering played, it was swallowed up when the larger groups were playing. We missed Harp Attack, which played in GAC's other Celtic programs. Still one of the most beautiful numbers of the evening was Lacey's solo of Danny Boy, a song that seems to have been made for the Celtic harp.

The songs, reels, strathspeys, jigs, all of the musical numbers, were well received. The music, especially the fiddling, was toe tapping. The audience was carried along and expressed their delight.

Encore

However it was the encore numbers that seemed to be the most popular. Perhaps that was because the audience could more actively participate. Mac-talla taught the audience a chorus in Gaelic and explained what it meant. Then the audience was encouraged to sing to the tune of "March of the Men of Harlech," a song with the odd name "Woad". Tongue in cheek, we sang about the advantage the early Britons had in not needing clothes but instead rubbing their bodies with bright blue "woad". We all sang heartily and everyone seemed to enjoy the humor of it.

Garden Series

Continues Saturday

The Hoe and Hope Farm and Garden Club is sponsoring a special gardening program for teens and adults at the Old Maryland Farm with garden lectures throughout the year. The next program is on Saturday, April 8 on food preservation.

There is a yearly membership fee. For more information call 249-7077 or TTY 699-2544. The Old Maryland Farm is located at 301 Watkins Park Drive, Upper Marlboro.

Perhaps next time we might have a few more numbers in which the audience can participate. A hint that there might be another Celtic program in Fall went over big with those present. Even at that, it was hard to let the players stop. Many of us were reluctant to leave. No doubt most of us will be back for more.

Background

The background consisted of flags of several Celtic countries. Among these were the Welsh and Scottish dragons, the Irish cross and the very different flag from the Isle of Man which showed three running feet. The flags set the tone for the evening.

The audience sat at tables around the stage. It was convenient to have a place to put refreshments which were undoubtedly a good money raiser for GAC. However, people were so close to one another that it was most difficult to leave one's place for any reason until intermission when the crowd lightened. The feeling was of being too close. We thought a better solution was what was done at the first Celtic evening when tables were close to the stage but there were also seats not at tables.

Tax Time Tardiness

Running out of time and can't complete the 1994 tax return by April 15? There is good news. The deadline this year is Monday, April 17 since the 15th falls on a Saturday. But people who still can't make the deadline have the option to file an extension. CPAs caution that an extension does not excuse anyone from paying taxes on time. They must estimate their 1994 tax liability and send in at least 90 percent of their liability by the April 17 deadline to avoid late payment penalties.

For an automatic four-month extension, fill out Form 4868. It does not require an explanation to the IRS. Anyone on active military duty outside the U.S. or Puerto Rico on tax day can obtain an automatic two-month extension, without filing Form 4868. United States citizens and residents who live or have their principal place of business abroad on tax day also qualify for the automatic two-month extension, but must attach an explanatory statement to their tax return. These individuals also may obtain an additional two-month extension until August 15 by completing Form 4868.

Council Hears About Cable Rates and Drug Taskforce

by Mary Moien

On March 27, the Greenbelt City Council met for both a regular meeting and a public hearing on basic cable rates. In addition, City Manager Daniel Hobbs presented the proposed FY 1995/96 budget and Police Chief James Craze sought approval for city participation in the High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area Program. Council Member Tom White requested that the issue of the proposed change in ownership of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway be added to the agenda.

Hobbs led off the meeting with a general presentation about budget issues, accomplishments for this year and challenges for next year.

Cable Rate Hearing

Federal Communications Commission regulations require a public hearing when an increase in BASIC cable rates is proposed. Maryland Cable has submitted a rate increase for the basic services (from $10 per month to $10.38 per month) as well as for other services.

David Wilson, General Manager for Maryland Cable, made the presentation. He described the basic rate increase as well as other service and rate changes. One change in service is for those who subscribe to the Variety Package of six specific channels. That package will now include the Disney Channel and will increase over $1 per month. For those who already separately pay for Disney, this will represent a decrease. The maximum increase in monthly charges will be $1.95.

Looking at the information provided by the cable company, Resident Doug Love argued that several services are increasing by a higher rate. Wilson responded that certain installation and service rates are increasing, but within the levels allowed by the FCC.

Virginia Beauchamp reminded council that the agreement the city originally signed for a franchise required a $3 per month basic service. She noted that this service had more than tripled. Wilson indicated that the 1992 Federal Cable Act changed requirements. Maryland Cable is in compliance and, according to FCC regulations, cannot offer a smaller basic set of channels than the 38 or so currently available.

An angry White commented on how convenient the law was for cable operators and their increases. He called the required hearing "a farce," indicating that whatever question is asked can be responded to by "the law made me do it." White indicated that many residents want only local access, not all of the other channels.

Mayor Antoinette Bram asked Wilson if Maryland Cable would work with municipalities to see if a "more basic" set of channels could be worked out. If appears it would require a change in FCC regulations. The council passed a motion to write a letter to Congressman Steny Hoyer concerning this issue.

Drug Trafficking TaskForce

The Federal Government has established selected areas as High Intensity Drug Trafficking Areas. The Baltimore/Washington area has now been designated and the Greenbelt Police Department has been invited to participate in the task force to combat the problem. Chief Craze described the positive aspects of this project. The Federal Government, along with other state and local forces, will be occupying three floors of the OAO building in Greenway.

If approved by the city, the offices now working on narcotics within the city will become part of the task force. The advantages to Greenbelt include possible additional Federal funding for Greenbelt police, as well as the advantage that the whole task force would work on Greenbelt drug issues as they arise. With notice, the Greenbelt officers can withdraw from the task force if desired. The council approved this detail and requested six-month progress updates.

BW Parkway

According to an article in the Washington Post, the Federal Government is considering turning over the Baltimore-Washington Parkway to Maryland. Such a change would cause significant problems to Greenbelt if the parkway becomes an interstate highway with heavy truck traffic. White recounted the history of the parkways as defense limited-access highways with the BW Parkway leading out to Fort Meade.

The mayor asked city staff to investigate the exact meaning of a "parkway." The council is unanimous in wanting the road to remain a parkway under the control of the National Park Service. They hope to bring up this topic in a meeting with U.S. Senator Paul Sarbanes and Representative Steny Hoyer in which the future of the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center will also be addressed.

BARC Gives April Tours To Recognize Earth Day

In recognition of the 25th anniversary of Earth Day, the Beltsville Agricultural Center (BARC) is offering special tours throughout April which feature science to protect the environment.

The "Every-Day-is Earth-Day" tours, which focus on current agricultural research on protecting soil, water and air, begin at the National Visitor Center of USDA's Agricultural Research Service (ARS).

Visitors can witness findings on such topics as how farmers can reduce lung-damaging farm-land dust, the results of insecticideless crops and the effects of water-transported chemicals.

The tours also look back at ARS environmental experiments that began in the 1970's and their impact today. Such experiments dealt with recycling sewage into resource, pest control and shock therapy for land planning.

To schedule an Earth Day tour, or a regular tour of BARC, call Marge Fellows, (301)-504-8483.

Focus Group Clarified

In a letter to Maryland State Senator Leo Greenbelt, District Engineer Creston J. Mills, Jr., of the Maryland State Highway Administration (SHA) clarified the role of a recently established focus group. This group is part of the Project Planning Study for US 1/Md 201. The focus group is to identify transportation, bicycle and pedestrian needs through the remainder of the process to define the project's alternatives.

The focus group is not involved with road improvements needed for the proposed Department of Agriculture (USDA) headquarters facility on Sunnyside Road near the Agricultural Library. SHA and USDA representatives are negotiating the extent of the highway improvements that USDA will be required to do in connection with the facility.

Meanwhile, a group called the Coalition to Save the Farm has been circulating a petition in opposition to the USDA complex.

Camellia Show

The annual camellia show sponsored by the Camellia Society of the Potomac Valley will feature a display of hundreds of cut flowers as well as educational exhibits. Included will be an exhibit on the new winter hardy camellias developed by the U.S. National Arboretum. The show will be open to the public on Saturday, April 8 from 2-5p.m. and on Sunday, April 9, 10a.m.-5p.m. in the auditorium of the U.S. National Arboretum, 3501 New York Avenue, NE, Washington, DC.
